

LEAGUE OF NATIONS SEEKS TO HALT WAR

WARNS GREEKS AND BULGARS TO CEASE WAR, CALLS COUNCIL

Council of the League of Nations to Convene Monday in Paris to Act on Crisis; Greek and Bulgarian Representatives to Sit in the Parley

Action Undertaken by President Briand of League Council Following an Appeal by Bulgaria Demanding Immediate Convocation of Council on Conflict

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Geneva, Oct. 23.—Acting to halt definitely Greco-Bulgarian hostilities, the League of Nations today warned the warring parties to refrain from hostilities and summoned its council to act on the crisis Monday.

The council will convene Monday afternoon in Paris, this being the earliest date which would permit of arrival of the Greek and Bulgarian representatives who will sit as members of the council. It is reported that British Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain will attend.

This action, undertaken by French Foreign Minister Briand, as president of the league's council, followed an appeal by Bulgaria under articles 10 and 11 of the league covenant demanding immediate convocation of the council on the Greco-Bulgarian conflict.

Under this section of the League covenant a member or non member of the League can make such an appeal when it feels there is aggression against it, or when the world's peace appears threatened by an existing conflict between two nations. Upon receiving the appeal, Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League, immediately notified Briand, upon whom, as council president, the task of calling together this important body of the League devolves.

The Bulgarian appeal said Bulgaria has ordered voluntarily the withdrawal of her troops from the Macedonian frontier for the purpose of preventing further conflicts with the Greeks, and, as an evidence of Bulgaria's complete confidence in the just intervention by the League for a settlement of the crisis. The League's council will sit Monday afternoon upon Briand's call. Meantime it is assumed here that the Greeks and Bulgars, both members of the League, will heed the warning message of the council leader. The violation of it could be followed by unpleasant consequences such as economic and financial pressure and diplomatic isolation.

Briand, in his capacity as council president, telegraphed both the Greek and Bulgarian governments, reminding them of their engagements under article 12 of the League covenant, and calling on them to halt military operations and withdraw their troops behind their respective frontiers.

The Bulgarians' first note was followed today by a second, protesting that the Greeks had invaded Bulgaria over a 38 kilometer (about 25 miles) front.

LEAGUE COUNCIL TO MEET IN PARIS

Paris, Oct. 23.—The League of Nations council session to seek settlement of the Greco-Bulgarian conflict will be held in Paris on Monday.

4 GREEKS KILLED AND 8 WOUNDED

London, Oct. 23.—The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph reported today that four Greeks were killed and eight wounded, including a captain, when the Greeks reoccupied Demirkapou frontier post No. 69. Later, it was said they occupied territory just outside of Petrich. (The time of the action was not noted and may cover an incident of yesterday.)

WAR THREAT IS THOUGHT HALTED

Sofia, Oct. 23.—Intervention by diplomats of the great powers with the Bulgarian government has apparently halted the war threat in the Balkans, at least temporarily. Working frantically all day Thursday the diplomats succeeded in persuading the Bulgarian cabinet to refrain from a declaration of war against Greece, and instead to try the pacific route leading through the League of Nations.

As a result of this pressure from the great powers, Bulgaria appealed to the league to convolve its council in an effort to end the border troubles of the two neighbors.

The cabinet was summoned for last night to cast its vote on whether Bulgaria should declare war, but this momentous decision was not required in the light of the powers' intervention.

In postponing a war vote, the cabinet risked internal political displeasure for the temper of the country runs high, and, it was said, any delay by the League in settling the troubles or any further invasion by the Greeks into Bulgaria would force the cabinet either to take the last step and declare war, or resign under the wrath of the populace at failure "to defend the national honor."

GREEK FORCES CAPTURE 25 BULGARS

By ANTHONY PAPAYANNAKIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Athens, Oct. 23.—Greek forces, occupying several villages near the Macedonian frontier, captured 25 Bulgars and also occupied after bitter fighting the outposts of Demirkapou, in the vicinity of Demirhisar.

Greek forces succeeded in driving the Bulgarian forces from the vicinity of Demirhisar, Macedonia, at 10 P. M. Thursday.

Demirhisar lies close to the Macedonian-Bulgarian line and was the original scene of conflict between the hostile neighbors. The Greeks contended that the present crisis arose from the Bulgarian killing of a Greek captain while carrying a flag of truce. The Greeks assert that Bulgarian comitadjis invaded the town. The Bulgars' version is that the Greeks were the aggressors.

Likewise the Bulgarians in their appeal for League of Nations intervention in the new Balkan crisis claimed they had "voluntarily" withdrawn their forces from the border.

Whether this was intended to apply to forces on the Bulgarian side or was also intended to cover Demirkapou was not clear from Geneva advices.

BULGARS MOBILIZING DEFENSIVELY, REPORTED

By ROBERT H. BEST

Vienna, Oct. 23.—A Sofia dispatch to the Neue Freie Presse here says that the Bulgars are mobilizing "defensively" and that unless the League of Nations action in ending the Greco-Bulgarian crisis is speedy, a "war to the death" is certain. (This dispatch was filed before announcement from Geneva that the council had been summoned for Monday to act in the crisis.)

Meantime Bulgarian officials here told the United Press that Greece had been preparing for a long time for her march across the Bulgarian frontier.

"Otherwise," the Bulgarian spokes man said, "it would have been impossible to advance a whole division over mountainous terrain on less than 24 hours' notice."

He claimed that Greece had ignored Bulgarian notes asking avoidance of hostilities pending an investigation of the clash, adding that Greece was "absolutely seeking trouble."

Great Legal Battle Over Prohibition Law

DRY FORCE IN SHAKEUP, DROPS 26 FEDERAL MEN

NO REASON GIVEN FOR OUSTING OF PROHIBITION AGENTS

CHANGES EXPECTED TO RESTORE ENFORCEMENT TO EFFICIENT BASIS

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—The new line-up of prohibition enforcement officials in the northwest:

Northwest administrator, W. F. Rhinow.

Deputy administrator in charge of enforcement, Major B. B. Wilcox.

Deputy administrator in charge of permits, J. G. Steenson.

Legal adviser and prosecutor, Andrew J. Volstead.

Deputy administrator for Wisconsin, Ray J. Nye.

Deputy administrator for North Dakota, Arthur E. Stone.

Agent in charge St. Paul group, Lane Maloney.

Agent in charge Minneapolis group, John Kruse.

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Twenty-six federal prohibition agents in the northwest district were ousted today in the most extensive dry force shakeup on record.

W. F. Rhinow, new northwest administrator, announced acceptance of the resignations at 9 A. M. today.

No reason was given for the ousting of the agents and General Rhinow withheld the names of those relieved from duty.

The shakeup is part of General Rhinow's program to restore prohibition enforcement efforts in the northwest to an efficiency basis, he said. When he was recently appointed to office he asked the resignations of every agent in the district. All complied and of the 70 resignations offered 26 were accepted today.

Included in those accepted was the resignation of Maurice L. Silverman, acting divisional enforcement chief.

General Rhinow announced a Bertillon division would be added to the prohibition enforcement facilities of the northwest division. Similar bureaus may be established over the country. Through its service dry agents will be able to positively identify any liquor law violators.

Other moves toward a tightening up on liquor use in this territory include:

Completion of plans for establishment of a school of information to be conducted by Andrew J. Volstead.

Periodical examinations of agents to determine their fitness and their rating.

Establishment of an aerial patrol division.

Around the prohibition office it was reported that Arthur J. Lund, lieutenant of the 109th Aero Squadron, would be appointed to the aerial division of the enforcement army. A finger print expert is also to be appointed.

A list of more than 300 applicants for positions on the enforcement squad is being considered by Rhinow and from this list the vacancies created today will be filled.

CHARGED WITH KILLING 2 INFANTS OF HIS DAUGHTER

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Ernest Kerlin, farmer living in Edna township, is held in the county jail here on a first degree murder charge following a confession by his young daughter.

Kerlin, according to the allegations, murdered two infants born to his daughter in August 1923 and July of this year.

County officials are digging on the Kerlin farm for the bodies of the infants. So far they have not been found. Kerlin is a widower and father of a large family. He is said to have written a letter to his father, divulging his alleged crimes and asking his forgiveness. The case will be tried at the fall term of court.

Stuck Her Head in Pail of Water

Waukesha, Wis.—Mrs. Hylah Sellers testified in her divorce case here that her husband became so infuriated when she tipped back the chair in which he was sitting, that he picked her up bodily and stuck her head in a bucket of water she was using to mop the floor. Judge David Agnew granted the divorce to the husband.

BRITISH PLANE, CUP RACE ENTRY, TAKES NOSE DIVE

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 23.—(UP)—The British plane Supermarine Napier S-7 went in a nose dive today trying out for the Schneider cup races to be held tomorrow. Extent of damage and casualties, if any, could not be determined immediately.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 23.—(UP)—The Supermarine Napier S-7 seaplane, secretly built for the British air ministry to bring to England the Schneider cup, crashed in navigability tests at Bay Shore today and will be unable to compete in the international seaplane race here tomorrow.

Captain H. C. Bird, pilot of the "mystery plane," was rescued from the sinking craft after the crash by the crew of a coast guard cutter and taken to Johns Hopkins hospital for treatment of bruises on the head and cuts on the hands.

3 MORE BODIES RECOVERED FROM THE SUNKEN S-51

ARE UNIDENTIFIED AT PRESENT. WERE TAKEN FROM ENGINE ROOM

RECORDS AND FINGER PRINTS REQUIRED TO ASCERTAIN IDENTITY

Newport, R. I., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Two more bodies as yet unidentified, have been recovered from the sunken hull of the submarine S-51 off Block Island, according to a wireless dispatch received here today by naval communications.

The bodies were taken from the engine room of the submarine by divers.

With the body recovered late yesterday this makes a total of eight that have been taken from the lost submarine.

The bodies recovered today are being brought here on the navy tug Triton.

New London, Conn., Oct. 23.—Identification of the three bodies recovered from the sunken submarine S-51 in the past 24 hours cannot be made until Captain J. H. Taylor of the Bureau of Navigation at Washington arrives at Newport with the record and finger prints of the crew, it was learned here today.

Meanwhile work on raising the submarine is progressing favorably, it was said, and the navy hopes to make its final attempt to bring the craft to the surface in a few days. Divers continued their exploration today.

HEAVY SNOW CAUSED ACCIDENTS

MRS. MARTHA MOLLITOR, ST. CLOUD, CRUSHED BY AUTOMOBILE

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Heavy snow last night caused serious injuries to two persons in traffic accidents.

Mrs. Martha Mollitor, prominent in St. Cloud society, was perhaps fatally crushed when the car in which she and her husband were driving home from Minneapolis, crashed into the rear of a truck six miles south of here. Mrs. Mollitor was still unconscious today. Her husband was slightly hurt.

Gerald Swanson stepped from a curbing in front of an automobile driven by O. E. Polignik. He suffered a broken leg.

INHERITANCE TAX LAWS OF U. S. OPPOSED

6 STATE GOVERNORS AND REPRESENTATIVES FROM 11 OTHER STATES OBJECT

CLAIM FEDERAL GOVERNMENT USURPED THIS TAXING FUNCTION IN WAR CRISIS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 23.—Six state governors and personal representatives of 11 others demanded repeal of the federal inheritance tax before the ways and means committee today.

The federal government usurped the levying power of the state in this tax in a war crisis and has unjustly continued it since, the governors contend in their arguments for repeal.

The delegation of 17 state executives was led by Governor Clifford Walker, democrat, Georgia, who presented a resolution adopted by a conference of governors at Savannah last June, asking repeal of the federal inheritance tax.

"Our people are earnestly in sympathy with this petition which asks you to eliminate the inheritance tax clause when you write the new tax bill," Walker told the committee.

"It is admitted that this is the field of exclusive jurisdiction of the state."

"The present law would not and could not have been passed save as a war time measure and the time has now come for its repeal."

Representatives of other governors included W. I. Nolan, lieutenant Governor of Minnesota; Henry Cours, attorney, New Mexico; A. C. Bollinger, tax commissioner of Illinois; H. S. McCuskey, secretary to Governor Hunt of Arizona; William Belknap, state legislator, Kentucky; lieutenant Governor Clem Kimball of Iowa; T. H. H. Thoreson, tax commissioner of North Dakota; B. L. Baer, tax commissioner of South Dakota.

The delegation claimed to have the sympathy of 32 state governors and only four have opposed repeal of the tax, according to Walker.

Figures were submitted to show that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, the 17 states represented in the delegation paid the federal government more than $50,000,000 in inheritance taxes. Four paid more than $1,000,000 each. They were New York $29,351,358; Minnesota 1,374,128; Illinois $6,407,454 and Maryland $1,874,902.

The five other governors appearing included Thomas McLeod of South Carolina, Henry L. Whitefield of Mississippi, Angus McLean of North Carolina, Lee Trinkle of Virginia, Austin Peay of Tennessee.

Several propositions for correcting the present duplication between the states and the federal government in collection of inheritance taxes, were suggested by the governors although none pledged himself to any one proposal.

Governor Whitefield, Mississippi, said he would agree to an arrangement whereby the state would collect levies on inheritances up to $500,000 and let the federal government collect on the larger estates.

Governor Trinkle, Virginia, said he would sanction a plan for the government collecting all inheritance taxes and rebating to the state a certain percentage if the proposal could be feasibly worked out.

Each governor was requested by the committee as to what he thought of Florida seeking the residence of rich citizens by refusing to levy an inheritance tax.

Governors Trinkle and McLean, North Carolina, and Lieutenant Governor W. I. Nolan, Minnesota, said they believed it was Florida's privilege not to levy an estate tax.

Representative Garner, ranking democratic member of the committee, pointed out to witnesses that the plan of Chairman Green, republican, would offer every state an equal rate on the state taxes and that Florida would not escape. The Green plan is for the federal government to collect a set rate from states which have no estate tax and in states which have estate taxes to collect the amount by which the federal rate exceeds the state rate.

Nolan read a letter from Governor Christianson, which stated if the federal government would abandon its inheritance tax the state of Minnesota would be able to reduce its state taxes generally.

"The farmer of Minnesota would be especially benefitted because they must now bear burdens excessive in comparison with their income," the letter said.

After the testimony the committee adjourned to permit the delegation to call on President Coolidge at the White House.

SHALL THE CHURCH TAKE SIDES IN WARS OF FUTURE

Washington, Oct. 23.—(UP)—The national council of Congregational churches of the United States today was faced squarely with the problem of deciding whether the church shall take sides in future wars.

Adoption of a noncombatant attitude was recommended in a comprehensive code drafted by the council's commission on public service, labelled a "statement of social ideals."

LODGE ATTACKS LEAGUE IN HIS POSTHUMOUS BOOK

DEPRECATED VALUE OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS EVER STOPPING ANY WAR

VOLUME IS ALSO SHARPLY CRITICAL OF PRESIDENT WILSON

New York, Oct. 23.—(UP)—With the League of Nations intervening to halt Greco-Bulgarian hostilities, posthumous accusations from the pen of its bitter enemy, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, published today, held the League "futile" and charged it "has done nothing to stop wars."

"Every day of the League's existence," he wrote, in a volume brought out by Scribner, entitled "The Senate and the League of Nations," "has convinced me of the wisdom of the United States in holding aloof from its useless and at the same time dangerous provisions. In practice the League thus far has proved futile for the purpose for which it was ostensibly designed and loudly proclaimed. It has done nothing to end wars."

The book is sharply critical of President Wilson, for Lodge held that not idealism but vanity actuated his work.

"The key to all he did was that he thought of everything in terms of Wilson," remarked Lodge.

SLOW GAINING JURY IN TRIAL

SLIGHTEST EXPRESSION OF OPINION FROWNED ON IN OBERHOLTZER CASE

Noblesville, Ind., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Defense objections to the slightest expression of an opinion in the case by a juror today still blocked selection of a jury for the Oberholtzer murder trial.

D. C. Stephenson, a former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan and two of his henchmen, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, are on trial on an indictment charging first degree murder for the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis.

Nineteen men were weeded out of the jury box during a tedious session yesterday in which it seemed at times that an agreement on a jury was near.

Most of those dismissed were excused on objections of Joseph Inman, chief defense attorney, who objected to any man whose political affiliations might influence his vote on a verdict.

delegation, told President Coolidge that we "are here to support the administration tax program."

Frederick A. Delano, chairman of a special committee of the National Tax association, organized last year at the suggestion of President Coolidge, presented a completely new system of inheritance and income taxes.

The program provides: Continuation of present inheritance taxes for 6 years; provision for a downward revision of rates to a maximum of 15 per cent; modification of stringent requirements for payment; abolition of the gift taxes; elimination of the federal inheritance tax after 6 years, this field being left entirely to the states.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS TO INDICT FIVE RAILROADS

ARE CHARGED WITH UNLAWFUL HAULING OF BEER

ROADS TO EMPLOY BEST LEGAL TALENT IN THEIR DEFENSE

Chicago, Oct. 23.—(UP)—One of the greatest legal battles ever waged over the federal prohibition law was forecast today in view of the government's announced intention to obtain indictment against five railroads for unlawful transportation of beer.

The best legal talent of some of the nation's largest railroad companies will be called upon in an effort to frustrate the conviction of roads if they are indicted. They are expected to make new attacks on the 18th amendment and the Volstead law.

Evidence against the railroads, many of their highest officials, heads of several breweries, and a number of Chicago politicians is to be presented to a federal grand jury in Chicago Monday. The government will demand indictments for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Announcement of the government's impending procedure was made by Assistant United States District Attorney James L. McDowell and Clarence L. Converse, a special agent of the internal revenue department. They said they had evidence that eastern breweries had been shipping good beer into Chicago at the rate of 100 carloads a month, obtaining through right of way over five railroads. Chicago politicians handled the delivery business in the middle west they said.

Conviction of the railroads, it was pointed out, may put a lot of box cars out of commission.

Officials said they had the numbers of all cars used in the traffic of beer and that under the law they can have the cars padlocked for one year.

While officials refused to divulge the names of the railroads involved they pointed out that two seizures made recently at Morton Grove, Ill., involved beer shipments on the New York Central lines.

Great Western passenger train No. 56, eastbound, was derailed six miles southwest of here at 1:30 a. m. today.

Engineer Jim Liddell, Des Moines, was pinned in his cab and when extricated was found to have his right leg crushed.

Though all the cars left the track no passenger was injured.

Spreading rails is thought to have caused the wreck. A large section of the track was torn up.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 23.—Passenger train No. 56, running between Des Moines and Minneapolis on the Great Western Line, was wrecked early today near Hudson, Ia.

Six coaches were derailed and the engine, tender and baggage car were overturned.

Engineer James Liddell is understood to have suffered an injured foot when he was caught in the wreckage. Passengers escaped with a bad shaking up, reports stated. A relief train arrived on the scene of the wreck and hauled passengers to Waterloo.

TWO ARE KILLED IN A RAILROAD CROSSING ACCIDENT

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Toll of the grade crossing accident at Norwood near here in which George Moline, Watertown, Minn., banker, was instantly killed yesterday, increased to two today with the death of Joseph V. Turner in a local hospital.

The car in which the two men were riding was struck by a passenger train. They were driving here from Atwater when the accident occurred.

The bodies recovered today are being brought here on the navy tug Triton.

New London, Conn., Oct. 23.—Identification of the three bodies recovered from the sunken submarine S-51 in the past 24 hours cannot be made until Captain J. H. Taylor of the Bureau of Navigation at Washington arrives at Newport with the record and finger prints of the crew, it was learned here today.

Meanwhile work on raising the submarine is progressing favorably, it was said, and the navy hopes to make its final attempt to bring the craft to the surface in a few days. Divers continued their exploration today.

HEAVY SNOW CAUSED ACCIDENTS

MRS. MARTHA MOLLITOR, ST. CLOUD, CRUSHED BY AUTOMOBILE

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Heavy snow last night caused serious injuries to two persons in traffic accidents.

Mrs. Martha Mollitor, prominent in St. Cloud society, was perhaps fatally crushed when the car in which she and her husband were driving home from Minneapolis, crashed into the rear of a truck six miles south of here. Mrs. Mollitor was still unconscious today. Her husband was slightly hurt.

Gerald Swanson stepped from a curbing in front of an automobile driven by O. E. Polignik. He suffered a broken leg.

STEAMER VOJLAV FOUNDERED IN A TORRENTIAL RAIN

London, Oct. 23.—(UP)—A Lloyd's message from Lands End today said the American steamer City of Fairbury reported searching unsuccessfully for five hours to find the steamer Vojlav, which she feared had foundered while the United States craft was accompanying her in a torrential rain.

INHERITANCE TAX LAWS OF U. S. OPPOSED

6 STATE GOVERNORS AND REPRESENTATIVES FROM 11 OTHER STATES OBJECT

CLAIM FEDERAL GOVERNMENT USURPED THIS TAXING FUNCTION IN WAR CRISIS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 23.—Six state governors and personal representatives of 11 others demanded repeal of the federal inheritance tax before the ways and means committee today.

The federal government usurped the levying power of the state in this tax in a war crisis and has unjustly continued it since, the governors contended in their arguments for repeal.

The delegation of 17 state executives was led by Governor Clifford Walker, democrat, Georgia, who presented a resolution adopted by a conference of governors at Savannah last June, asking repeal of the federal inheritance tax.

"Our people are earnestly in sympathy with this petition which asks you to eliminate the inheritance tax clause when you write the new tax bill," Walker told the committee.

"It is admitted that this is the field of exclusive jurisdiction of the state."

"The present law would not and could not have been passed save as a war time measure and the time has now come for its repeal."

Representatives of other governors included W. I. Nolan, Lieutenant Governor of Minnesota; Henry Cours, attorney New Mexico; A. C. Bollinger, tax commissioner of Illinois; H. S. McCluskey, secretary to Governor Hunt of Arizona; William Belknap, state legislator, Kentucky; Lieutenant Governor Clem Kimball of Iowa; T. H. H. Thompson, tax commissioner of North Dakota; R. L. Baer, tax commissioner of South Dakota.

The delegation claimed to have the sympathy of 32 state governors and only four have opposed repeal of the tax, according to Walker.

Figures were submitted to show that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, the 17 states represented in the delegation paid the federal government more than $50,000,000 in inheritance taxes. Four paid more than $1,000,000 each. They were New York $29,351,358; Minnesota 1,374,128; Illinois $6,407,454 and Maryland $1,874,902.

The five other governors appearing included Thomas McLeod of South Carolina, Henry L. Whitefield of Mississippi, Angus McLean of North Carolina, Lee Trinkle of Virginia, Austin Peay of Tennessee.

Several propositions for correcting the present duplication between the states and the federal government in collection of inheritance taxes, were suggested by the governors although none pledged himself to any one proposal.

Governor Whitfield, Mississippi, said he would agree to an arrangement whereby the state would collect levies on inheritances up to $500,000 and let the federal government collect on the larger estates.

Governor Trinkle, Virginia, said he would sanction a plan for the government collecting all inheritance taxes and rebating to the state a certain percentage, if the proposal could be feasibly worked out.

Each governor was requested by the committee as to what he thought of Florida seeking the residence of rich citizens by refusing to levy an inheritance tax.

Governors Trinkle and McLean, North Carolina, and Lieutenant Governor W. I. Nolan, Minnesota, said they believed it was Florida's privilege not to levy an estate tax.

Representative Garner, ranking democratic member of the committee, pointed out to witnesses that the plan of Chairman Green, republican, would offer every state an equal rate on the state taxes and that Florida would not escape. The Green plan is for the federal government to collect a set rate from states which have no estate tax and in states which have estate taxes to collect the amount by which the federal rate exceeds the state rate.

Nolan read a letter from Governor Christianson, which stated if the federal government would abandon its inheritance tax the state of Minnesota would be able to reduce its state taxes generally.

"The farmer of Minnesota would be especially benefited because they must now bear burdens excessive in comparison with their income," the letter said.

After the testimony the committee adjourned to permit the delegation to call on President Coolidge at the White House.

SHALL THE CHURCH TAKE SIDES IN WARS OF FUTURE

Washington, Oct. 23.—(UP)—The national council of Congregational churches of the United States today was faced squarely with the problem of deciding whether the church shall take sides in future wars.

Adoption of a noncombatant attitude was recommended in a comprehensive code drafted by the council's commission on public service, labelled a "statement of social ideals."

LODGE ATTACKS LEAGUE IN HIS POSTHUMOUS BOOK

DEPRECATED VALUE OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS EVER STOPPING ANY WAR

VOLUME IS ALSO SHARPLY CRITICAL OF PRESIDENT WILSON

New York, Oct. 23.—(UP)—With the League of Nations intervening to halt Greco-Bulgarian hostilities, posthumous accusations from the pen of its bitter enemy, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, published today, held the League "futile" and charged it "has done nothing to stop wars."

"Every day of the League's existence," he wrote, in a volume brought out by Scribners, entitled "The Senate and the League of Nations," "has convinced me of the wisdom of the United States in holding aloof from its useless and at the same time dangerous provisions. In practice the League thus far has proved futile for the purpose for which it was ostensibly designed and loudly proclaimed. It has done nothing to end wars."

The book is sharply critical of President Wilson, for Lodge held that not idealism but vanity actuated his work.

"The key to all he did was that he thought of everything in terms of Wilson," remarked Lodge.

SLOW GAINING JURY IN TRIAL

SLIGHTEST EXPRESSION OF OPINION FROWNED ON IN OBERHOLTZER CASE

Noblesville, Ind., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Defense objections to the slightest expression of an opinion in the case by a juror today still blocked selection of a jury for the Oberholtzer murder trial.

D. C. Stephenson, a former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan and two of his henchmen, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, are on trial on an indictment charging first degree murder for the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis. Nineteen men were weeded out of the jury box during a tedious session yesterday in which it seemed at times that an agreement on a jury was near.

Most of those dismissed were excused on objections of Joseph Inman, chief defense attorney, who objected to any man whose political affiliations might influence his vote on a verdict.

Gasoline Tax Payments

St. Paul.—The gasoline tax which went into effect last May has netted the state $2,806,548. It was announced here yesterday. It is estimated that the tax to the first of the year will total about $3,500,000.

delegation, told President Coolidge that we "are here to support the administration tax program."

Frederick A. Delano, chairman of a special committee of the National Tax association, organized last year at the suggestion of President Coolidge, presented a completely new system of inheritance and income taxes.

The program provides: Continuance of present inheritance taxes for 6 years; provision for a downward revision of rates to a maximum of 15 per cent; modification of stringent requirements for payment; abolition of the gift taxes; elimination of the federal inheritance tax after 6 years, this field being left entirely to the states.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS TO INDICT FIVE RAILROADS

ARE CHARGED WITH UNLAWFUL HAULING OF BEER

ROADS TO EMPLOY BEST LEGAL TALENT IN THEIR DEFENSE

Chicago, Oct. 23.—(UP)—One of the greatest legal battles ever waged over the federal prohibition law was forecast today in view of the government's announced intention to obtain indictment against five railroads for unlawful transportation of beer.

The best legal talent of some of the nation's largest railroad companies will be called upon in an effort to frustrate the conviction of roads if they are indicted. They are expected to make new attacks on the 18th amendment and the Volstead law.

Evidence against the railroads, many of their highest officials, heads of several breweries, and a number of Chicago politicians is to be presented to a federal grand jury in Chicago Monday. The government will demand indictments for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Announcement of the government's impending procedure was made by Assistant United States District Attorney James L. McDowell and Clarence L. Converse, a special agent of the internal revenue department. They said they had evidence that eastern breweries had been shipping good beer into Chicago at the rate of 100 carloads a month, obtaining through right of way over five railroads. Chicago politicians handled the delivery business in the middle west they said.

Conviction of the railroads, it was pointed out, may put a lot of box cars out of commission.

Officials said they had the numbers of all cars used in the traffic of beer and that under the law they can have the cars padlocked for one year.

While officials refused to divulge the names of the railroads involved they pointed out that two seizures made recently at Morton Grove, Ill., involved beer shipments on the New York Central lines.

GREAT WESTERN PASSENGER TRAIN WAS DERAILED

Waterloo, Ia., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Great Western passenger train No. 56, eastbound, was derailed six miles southwest of here at 1:30 a. m. today.

Engineer Jim Liddell, Des Moines, was pinned in his cab and when extricated was found to have his right leg crushed.

Though all the cars left the track no passenger was injured.

Spreading rails is thought to have caused the wreck. A large section of the track was torn up.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 23.—Passenger train No. 56, running between Des Moines and Minneapolis on the Great Western Line, was wrecked early today near Hudson, Ia.

Six coaches were derailed and the engine, tender and baggage car were overturned.

Engineer James Liddell is understood to have suffered an injured foot when he was caught in the wreckage. Passengers escaped with a bad shaking up, reports stated. A relief train arrived on the scene of the wreck and hauled passengers to Waterloo.

TWO ARE KILLED IN A RAILROAD CROSSING ACCIDENT

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Toll of the grade crossing accident at Norwood near here in which George Moline, Watertown, Minn., banker, was instantly killed yesterday, increased to two today with the death of Joseph V. Turner in a local hospital.

The car in which the two men were riding was struck by a passenger train. They were driving here from Atwater when the accident occurred.

Chinese Face Deportation
St. Paul.—Howard S. Abbott, United States court commissioner yesterday continued to November 25 the cases of four Chinese facing deportation charges. They were arrested in Minneapolis in connection with recent Tong wars and released on bond of $1,000.

Arctic Veterans

The arctic is simultaneously releasing its hold upon two gallant veterans of many battles with foe and berg. The revenue cutter Bear, so long the warder of the sealing fleet, is not to find an icy grave in the Bering sea, and Roud Amundsen's Maud, committed to the drift ice in 1922, instead of following Stefansson's Karluk to the bottom, has been released from the clutch of the ocean north of Siberia and is now on her way to Nome. Amundsen will deem it a piece of good fortune second only to the salvation of the bold mariners of the air who shared his recent flight from Spitzbergen. INTERESTING PROGRAM

Past District Governor "Eddie" Flynn to Deliver Principal Address

The Brainerd Rotary club is entertaining the teachers of the local schools at a banquet this Friday evening at the Ransford hotel.

This is an annual event, one of the established customs of the Brainerd club, and is awaited with keen anticipation by the teachers, for the Rotary has the reputation of being excellent entertainers.

An interesting program has been arranged, which includes plenty of singing, a liberal sprinkling of merriment and just enough serious matter to balance the festivities. The various schools of the city will present some particular "stunt" and much rivalry is expected.

"Eddie" Flynn, past district governor of Rotary, will be the speaker of the evening. Mr. Flynn has visited the local club in the past, and has earned the record of being one of the most interesting speakers that have addressed this organization. He presents his arguments in a rapid fire, straight-from-the-shoulder manner that demands and holds the close attention of his audiences. He has just returned from an extensive eastern tour where he has spoken before many Rotary clubs and where he has made a very good impression.

Rotarian Walter F. Wieland is chairman of the evening, and is being assisted by a very competent committee that has been working hard on the program. The banquet is scheduled for 7 o'clock.

Several Brainerd people left today for the cities to be in attendance at the big Minnesota-Notre Dame football game tomorrow. Others will return down tomorrow. This is heralded as one of the big games of the season, with both teams being closely matched.

NOTICE

As my greenhouses are beyond repairs I am obliged to tear them down, so will be unable to serve my customers after this date until further notice.

My business relations with the people of Brainerd has been very pleasant so I regret that we cannot see fit to rebuild at present.

Arctic Veterans

The arctic is simultaneously releasing its hold upon two gallant veterans of many battles with foe and hero. The revenue cutter Bear, so long the wanderer of the sealing fleet, is not to find an icy grave in the fering sea, and Roald Amundsen's Maud, committed to the drift ice in 1922, instead of following Stefansson's Karink to the bottom, has been released from the clutch of the ocean north of Siberia and is now on her way to Nome. Amundsen will deem it a piece of good fortune second only to the salvation of the bold mariners of the air who shared his recent flight from Spitzbergen. No ordinary ship of steel can endure unscathed what these hardy boats of sheathed oak have encountered and survived.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Not He

Young Bearent, son of Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, recently returned home bawling as if his heart would break.

"Paw," he howled, "the teacher says I'm precocious!"

"Did he?" returned his sire. "Well, you go back 'moor and tell the teacher I say if she wasn't a lady 'dam if I wouldn't come over there and beat her head off. You hain't nuth'n' of the sort!"—Kansas City Star.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

Past District Governor "Eddie" Flynn to Deliver Principal Address

The Brainerd Rotary club is entertaining the teachers of the local schools at a banquet this Friday evening at the Ransford hotel.

This is an annual event, one of the established customs of the Brainerd club, and is awarded with keen anticipation by the teachers, for the Rotary has the reputation of being excellent entertainers.

An interesting program has been arranged, which includes plenty of singing, a liberal sprinkling of merriment and just enough serious matter to balance the festivities. The various schools of the city will present some particular "stunt" and much rivalry is expected.

"Eddie" Flynn, past district governor of Rotary, will be the speaker of the evening. Mr. Flynn has visited the local club in the past, and has earned the record of being one of the most interesting speakers that have addressed this organization. He presents his arguments in a rapid fire, straight-from-the-shoulder manner that demands and holds the close attention of his audiences. He has just returned from an extensive eastern tour where he has spoken before many Rotary clubs and where he has made a very good impression.

Rotarian Walter F. Wieland is chairman of the evening, and is being assisted by a very competent committee that has been working hard on the program. The banquet is scheduled for 7 o'clock.

FIVE MEN PLAY 189 HAND BELLS

Appearing Under the Auspices of the Swedish Bethany
Church

Music lovers of Brainerd and vicinity will be given a rare treat on Saturday, November 14 when the Scandinavian Bell Ringers will appear at the First Methodist church under the auspices of the Swedish Bethany church.

The Bell Ringers play on 189 bells, the largest set of hand-bells in the world, and it takes five men to play them. The bells weigh from a few ounces to 18 pounds each, and are especially constructed by one of the oldest bell concerns in the world. Brainerd is fortunate to have this opportunity of hearing this wonderful musical organization, as they are now on their last tour of this country before returning to Sweden next May, and are in demand in all the larger cities.

Last fall they played to capacity houses at several of the largest churches of the twin cities, including the large Swedish Mission Tabernacle of Minneapolis, with a seating capacity of over 2,500.

The mission of the Bell Ringers is to reveal the extent of their accomplishment, the boundless range of bell music and the perfect musical consonance obtainable.

The opening date for the sale of tickets and the places they can be secured will be announced in a few days.

Comparison With Other Countries
Brings Out Its Great
Superiority

A comparison of the Constitution of the United States with similar instruments used in governing other countries was made by Herbert E. Park, president of the state association of Lincoln clubs, at the organization of the Crow Wing County contrasted its rule with that of the Democratic party, pointing out the important fact that in the past 60 years, the Republican party has been in power 44 years, all of which have given this country prosperity with the exception of the re-organization period following the World war. The country has come to feel that a republican administration means prosperity and sound government, and the party has never disappointed in this reputation.

Attorney William Wood and Postmaster A. D. Day, of Long Prairie, headed a delegation from Todd county, who attended Thursday evening's meeting with exceptional interest, since the next Lincoln club to be organized will be started in Todd county. Both Mr. Wood and Mr. Day made short talks at the banquet.

D. D. Schrader, republican county chairman, presided at the banquet, and introduced the after-dinner speakers. It was a great disappointment to all to learn that special entertainers who had been engaged were unable to come, being delayed on account of Thursday's snow storm. The storm also kept a number of delegations from surrounding counties from coming to the banquet, although there were a number from nearby towns in attendance. About 80 were seated at the table.

In addition to the program the Crow Wing County Lincoln club was officially organized at the banquet. The following officers were elected to guide the new club through its first year:

President—O. M. Wamvig, Deerwood.

Secretary—R. J. Harte, Pequot.

Treasurer—R. J. Tinkelpaugh, Brainerd.

All members are very enthusiastic about the future of the new club, and predict that it will be a real power in furthering the republican cause in this county. Plans now call for an observance of Lincoln day in February and possibly other programs in the meantime. There are no set meeting dates for the club, but meetings can be called at the will of the officers.

YOU will admire the Monarch Range the instant you see it. The white porcelain panels, blue-black Mirco top, smooth nickel parts, and blued steel body will attract you at once. And the best part of it is that every part of the Monarch can be kept looking like new with so very little care.

The Mirco Top needs no stove blacking. And for that reason pots and pans do not get black on the bottom.

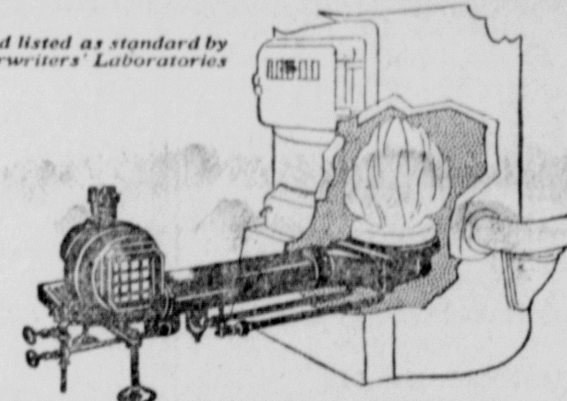

How many hours of kitchen drudgery the Monarch will save! And how you will enjoy cooking on this wonderful range! You might as well have a new Monarch because it will pay its own cost by the fuel it saves.

MALLEABLE

The Monarch is built of unbreakable malleable iron. Joints are all riveted. No air leaks can occur to waste fuel and interfere with the operation of a range built this way. That's why the Monarch gives the same satisfactory service after many years as when it is new.

See the Simplest Oil Burner at Work!

The best judges of Kleen-Heet are the people who own them. We want you to talk to Kleen-Heet owners right here in town to learn from their own experience what Kleen-Heet can do for you.

They'll tell you that Kleen-Heet is absolutely automatic—that, cold days or mild, they never lift a finger—Kleen-Heet does it all, automatically. Free forever from furnace slavery—from underheated or overheated homes—they let Kleen-Heet do the work and take the worry.

There must be a reason why in Chicago, the most competitive of all oil burner markets, more Kleen-Heets were installed last year, than any two other makes combined. Kleen-Heet owners here are getting the same faithful, economic results that Kleen-Heet has given for five years in over 20,000 homes.

Let us make an appointment for you to talk to a Kleen-Heet owner in your neighborhood—to see Kleen-Heet at work in a home. You, too, will want Kleen-Heet this winter. And you can have it, if you ACT NOW! Only a small deposit down. Then easy monthly payments.

PRINTING CRIME NEWS

SHALL a paper print crime news, is a topic often discussed by the readers of newspapers, and not very often considered by the makers of newspapers. It would be eminently fit if every story of crime also carried its just punishment, just as the old time yellow covered Nick Carter dime novels served crime stories. The old dime novel always carried its chapter giving final retribution to every offender. If crime seemed attractive in the first pages of the story, the law got the criminals in the end and sentence, stern and unyielding, was meted out at the close.

But nowadays, the newspapers print the crime, and especially in the holdups, captures seem few and justice takes months and years sometimes to get an offender. In the movies we see any amount of crimes portrayed and precious little done to the offender. It's all right in the way of realism to print stories of crime and probably to show them on the silver screen, but somewhere, sometime, there should be the grim finish well written and well pictured, that crime carries with it punishment, and that the law will eventually "get" every criminal.

"Woe unto the newspaper that makes crime seem attractive; woe unto the editor who dares not expose and denounce crime."

The above quotation is from an address delivered by Marcellus E. Foster, when he spoke to students of journalism of the University of Missouri. He discussed the privileges, duties and obligations that rest upon a publisher in connection with the publication of crime news. Here is part of Mr. Foster's argument:

"Yes, the newspapers should print crime news. Nearly all literature that lives has recognized it. Let me tell you a story that I once read in a volume written by Ruskin. He pictured a great banquet. * * * The hall is bedecked; the ladies are in beautiful attire; there are silks and satins * * * There came trooping before them the crimes of the earth—poverty, disease and distress.

"Murderers do their fiendish acts in the presence of those who have just banqueted. Mothers, half starved, appear before them with hollow breasts; babies, wan, sick and lacking nourishment are seen. For one night, these people who had no thought of the outside world are made to see it.

"They realize that crime does exist; that evil and poverty are in the world; that pestilence and famine, murder and sudden death are just around the corner.

"That is what the modern newspaper must do. Crime exists, evil exists and we must tell it. We must tear down the walls that hide the disease, the criminality and the poverty of the world. But how must we do it?

"We must give them stories of the beautiful things of life, inspiring thoughts and of high ideals, while we are putting in print the stories of evil that men do. We must portray goodness as well as the bad, which can not be ended by trying to hide it from our eyes.

"Yes, we must and should print stories of crime, but let us always do it in a way that turns men from crime, not towards it. Let us show the horror and terror of it, and that punishment will follow."

BRISBANE ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

ARTHUR BRISBANE, most quoted newspaper man, highest paid column writer, etc., has these observations in Wednesday papers: "Seven great nations in Europe have agreed not to attack each other. That's better than trying to drag the United States into a league of nations, with the idea of calling on us for troops in case Europeans decide to fight, and for money to help pay their bills.

"We have forty-eight nations over here that agree not to murder each other and we are getting along nicely. If Europe will imitate us, everything will be pleasant."

SEVERAL years ago the Deerwood Enterprise carried quite an argument based on the proposition of "Will the October snow melt away?" It was an off year for cold and in that particular year the October snow was of such a pertinacious nature that it cleaved to the land from October to the next May. We hope this precedent will not be duplicated this year, as old-timers say we still have a few days of Indian summer coming to us, although we don't know who will do the collecting for us.

FAIRMONT needs a gas plant and a lot of papers were unkind enough to remark, why not use Frank Day as a gas generator. To which Day replied: "A dozen or more newspapers have fired shots at us, but can't hurt a Christian. The light of Day will continue to shine before bonehead editors and they will see our good works even if they refuse to glorify a good example."

FILM play at the Lyceum glorified a German police dog named Thunder, and also carried Senator Vest's eulogy of a dog. That applies to all dogs except our Airedale which is a natural born "bum," possessed of the wanderlust and preferring to eat neighbors' scraps instead of home feed.

MAYOR ARTHUR E. NELSON of St. Paul has vigorously denied that he is, was or intends to be dead. That was an unkind rumor to start just after a man got through editing a Sunday paper.

PRETTY soon they will be wrapping our potatoes in tissue paper and selling them to us like oranges. Daily the humble potato is bringing more wealth to the farmer.

You can always find things to do. If time lags on your hands and you're a single man, why, get married and your wife will tell you what to do.

JEAN HOFFMAN of Winona was a real master of harmony. He played the organ wonderfully and also pleaded guilty to having six wives.

DUCKS and geese partook of a barrel of mash at Albert Lea and got so drunk their squawks could be heard a mile.

This Is What Kills Farm Machinery

IF THE ACTUAL WORK THEY DO was all your machines had to stand they would last a lot longer than they do. Suppose you figure up roughly the cost of replacing each of them. It's a lot of money, isn't it? Reliable statistics show that machines left out in the open all the time last just about half as long as they would if put under cover and given a little grease and paint treatment as soon as their work for the year is finished.

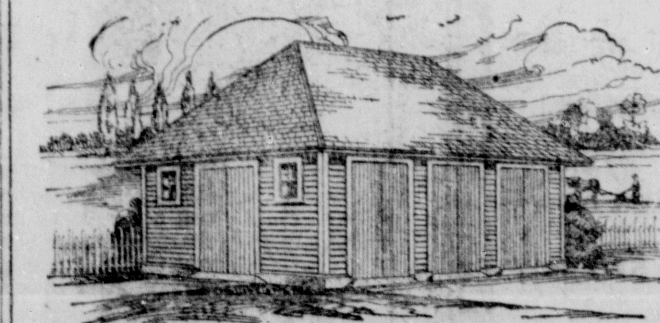

The Machine Grave Yard

Take twelve of the most common farm machines—plow, disc, harrow, corn planter, drill, cultivator, mower, grain binder, corn binder, dump rake, hay loader, manure spreader, and wagon. The average life of these machines when left under a sky roof the year round is seldom more than 7½ years. In many cases some machines go to the "grave yard" in 3 or 4 years. And there is always a lot of hard work and expensive repairs each Spring to make before those that are left are fit to use.

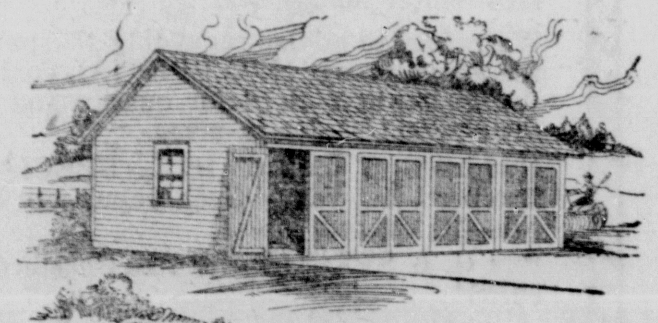

Those same machines when placed in a weather-tight shed on a cement floor, as soon as their season's work is done, will last at least 15 years and there are numerous instances where well cared for grain binders have done good work for 25 years. Such lengthening of machine life and consequent reduction of machine repair and replacement costs are surely worth while. Think of practically cutting out one half of your new machine bills and reducing repair bills by a third to a half or more every year. Isn't that well worth while when all it costs to do it is the price of a simple shed? We are sure you will agree that it is.

This is the time to build the shed and get the machines into it and grease them before rust has a chance to cost you anything this year. They are all in good order now but they won't stay that way long. One rain will start the rust and it works fast after it gets started.

We show two more shed designs here, both of which are good. We have all the other good ones here at our office and will give you a price on any of them in a hurry.

PRINTING CRIME NEWS

SHALL a paper print crime news, is a topic often discussed by the readers of newspapers, and not very often considered by the makers of newspapers. It would be eminently fit if every story of crime also carried its just punishment, just as the old time yellow covered Nick Carter dime novels served crime stories. The old time novel always carried its chapter giving final retribution to every offender. If crime seemed attractive in the first pages of the story, the law got the criminals in the end and sentence, stern and unyielding, was meted out at the close.

But nowadays, the newspapers print the crime, and especially in the holdups, captures seem few and justice takes months and years sometimes to get an offender. In the movies we see any amount of crimes portrayed and precious little done to the offender. It's all right in the way of realism to print stories of crime and probably to show them on the silver screen, but somewhere, sometime, there should be the grim finish well written and well pictured, that crime carries with it punishment, and that the law will eventually "get" every criminal.

"Woe unto the newspaper that makes crime seem attractive; woe unto the editor who dares not expose and denounce crime."

The above quotation is from an address delivered by Marcellus E. Foster, when he spoke to students of journalism of the University of Missouri. He discussed the privileges, duties and obligations that rest upon a publisher in connection with the publication of crime news. Here is part of Mr. Foster's argument:

Soon the helpless scow was abreast of the encampment, and in spite of the frantic efforts of her crew to propel her shoreward she drifted momentarily closer to the cataract below. Manifestly it was impossible to row and intercept the derelict before she took the plunge, and so, helpless in this extremity, the audience began to stream down over the rounded boulders which formed the margin of the river. On the opposite bank another crowd was keeping pace with the wreck. As they ran, these people shouted at one another and gesticulated wildly. Their faces were white, their words were meaningless, for it was a spectacle tense with imminent disaster that they beheld; it turned them sick with apprehension.

Immediately above White Horse the current gathers itself for the final plunge, and although, at the last moment, the Roulette seemed about to straighten herself out and take the rapids head on, some malign influence checked her swing and she lunged over quarteringly to the torrent.

A roar issued from the throats of the beholders; the craft reappeared, and then, a moment later, was half hidden again in the smother. It could be seen that she was completely awash and that those galloping white-maned horses were charging over her. She was buffeted about as by battering-rams; the remainder of her cargo was being rapidly torn from her deck. Soon another shout arose, for human figures could be seen still clinging to her.

Onward the scow went, until once again she fetched up on a reef or a rock which the low stage of the river had brought close to the surface; there she hung.

Poleon Doret had gone into action ere this. Having satisfied himself that some of the Roulette's crew remained alive, he cast loose the painter of the nearest skiff and called to Phillips, who was standing close by:

"Come on! We goin' get dose people!"

Now Pierce had had enough rough water for one day; it seemed to him that there must be other men in this crowd better qualified by training than he to undertake this rescue. But no one stepped forward and so he obeyed Doret's order. As he slipped out of his coat and kicked off his boots, he reflected, with a sinking feeling of disappointment, that his emotions were not by any means such as a really courageous man would experience. He was completely lacking in enthusiasm for this enterprise, for it struck him as risky, nay, foolhardy, insane, to take a boat over that cataract in an attempt to snatch human beings out from the very midst of those threshing breakers. It seemed more than likely that all hands would be drowned in the undertaking, and he could not summon the reckless abandon necessary to face that likelihood with anything except the frankest apprehension. He was surprised at himself, for he had imagined that when his moment came, if ever it did, that he, Phillips, would prove to be a rather exceptional person; instead he discovered that he was something of a coward. The unexpectedness of this discovery astonished the young man. Being deeply and thoroughly frightened, it was nothing less than the abhorrence at allowing that fright to become known which stiffened his determination. In his own sight he dwindled to very small proportions; then came the realization that Doret was having difficulty in securing volunteers to go with them, and he was considerably heartened at finding he was not greatly different from the rest of these people.

"Who's goin' he's us?" the Frenchman was shouting. "Come now, you stout fellows. Dere's lady on dat scow. 'Ain't nobody got nerve?"

It was a tribute to the manhood of the North that after a brief hesitation several men offered themselves. At the last moment, however, Broad and Bridges elbowed the others aside, saying: "Here, you! That's our boat and we know how she handles."

Into the skiff they piled and hurriedly stripped down; then, in obedience to Doret's command, they settled themselves at the forward oars, leaving Pierce to set the stroke. "Poleon stood braced in the stern, like a gondolier, and when willing hands had shot the boat out into the current he leaned his weight upon the after oars; beneath his and Pierce's efforts the ash blades bent. Out into the hurrying flood the four men sent their craft; then, with a mighty heave, the pilot swung its bow down-stream and helped to drive it directly at the throat of the cataract.

There came a breath-taking plunge during which the rescuing skiff and its crew were hidden from the view of those on shore; out into sight they lunged again and, in a cloud of spray, went galloping through the stampeding waves. At risk of capsizing they turned around and, battling furiously against the current, were swept down, stern first, upon the stranded barge. Doret's face was turned back over his shoulder, he was measuring distance, gauging with practised eye the whims and vagaries of the tumbling torrent; when he flung himself upon the oars Pierce Phillips felt his own strength completely dwarfed by that of the big pilot. "Poleon's hands inclosed his in a viselike grasp; he wielded the sweeps as if they were reeds, and with them he wielded Phillips.

Two people only were left upon the Roulette, that sidewise plunge having carried the crew away. Once again Sam Kirby's artificial hand proved its usefulness, and without its aid it is doubtful if either he or his daughter could have withstood the deluge. For a second time he had sunk that sharp steel hook into the solid wood and had managed by virtue of that advantage, to save himself and his girl. Both of them were half drowned; they were well-nigh frozen, too; now, however, finding themselves in temporary security, Kirby had broached one of the few remaining cases of bottled goods. As the rowboat came close its occupants saw him press a drink upon his daughter, then gulp one himself.

It was impossible either to lay the skiff alongside the wreck with any degree of care or to hold her there; as a matter of fact, the two hulls collided with a crash, Kid Bridges' oar snapped off short and the side of the lighter boat was smashed in. Water poured over the rescuers. For an instant it seemed that they were doomed, but, clawing fiercely at whatever they could lay hands upon, they checked their progress long enough for the castaways to obey Doret's shout of command. The girl flung herself into Pierce's arms; her father followed, landing in a heap amidst the wreckage. Even as they jumped the skiff was torn away and hurried onward by the flood.

Sam Kirby raised himself to his knees and turned his ashen face to Roulette.

"Hurt you any, kid?" he inquired. The girl shook her head. She was very white, her teeth were chattering, her wet dress clung tightly to her figure.

Staring fixedly at the retreating

barge the old man cried: "All gone! All gone!" Then, bracing himself with his good hand, he brandished his steel hook at the rapids and heaped curses upon them.

A half-mile below the wreck "Poleon Doret brought his crippled skiff into an eddy, and there the crowd, which had kept pace with it down the river-bank, lent willing assistance in effecting a landing. As Kirby stepped ashore he shook hands with the men who had jeopardized their lives for him and his daughter; in a cheerless, colorless voice he said, "It looks to me like you boys had a drink coming." From his coat pocket he drew a bottle of whisky; with a blow of that artificial hand he struck off its neck and then proffered it to Doret. "Drink hearty!" said he. "It's all that's left of a good outfit!"

Can success in life be undermined by constipation? Indeed it can. The poisons of this disease tire you out, wear you down, make you listless and make you lose interest in things in general. Ambition is most often prompted by a thoroughly healthy body. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings permanent relief from constipation.

"Shoulders that droop and feet that drag"

THERE are men and women who seem to be eternally tired. They go about things in a listless sort of way. They try, but they can't seem to make the grade. Perhaps they do not realize that it is constipation which is sapping their energy.

There is a sure relief from this disease. It is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN goes completely through the system without changing its fiber. It sweeps the intestine clean, purifies it, absorbs and carries moisture through it, urges it to act exactly as nature intended. Unlike habit-forming pills and drugs, it is never necessary to increase the amount of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN which you first find effective.

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regain your health and keep you feeling fit. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Eat your two tablespoonfuls with milk or cream, sprinkle it over other cereals, cook it with hot cereals, put it in soups and try it in the recipes given on every package.

Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—for only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. All grocers sell it. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

How Milk Is Pasteurized

It is first sampled and graded for TASTE and QUALITY; then comes the sediment test—the acidity test and is then pumped into pasteurizing vats where it is heated to 145 degrees, held 30 minutes—cooled in the vat to 120 degrees, then pumped back over airtight and cooled to 34 degrees, put through automatic bottler and capper and is ready for your table.

More Facts You Should Know

Pasteurization of milk is under the supervision of State as well as City authorities—every one who handles it is required to have a certificate of health—this method of purifying milk is endorsed by such famous doctors as the Mayo Brothers, large city health authorities, school heads, hospital heads and doctors everywhere. CHAPTER XI. (Continued)

Soon the helpless scow was abreast of the encampment, and in spite of the frantic efforts of her crew to propel her shoreward she drifted momentarily closer to the cataract below. Manifestly it was impossible to row and intercept the derelict before she took the plunge, and so, helpless in this extremity, the audience began to stream down over the rounded boulders which formed the margin of the river. On the opposite bank another crowd was keeping pace with the wreck. As they ran, these people shouted at one another and gesticulated wildly. Their faces were white, their words were meaningless, for it was a spectacle tense with imminent disaster that they beheld; it turned them sick with apprehension.

Immediately above White Horse the current gathers itself for the final plunge, and although, at the last moment, the Rouletta seemed about to straighten herself out and take the rapids head on, some malign influence checked her swing and she lunged over quarteringly to the torrent.

A roar issued from the throats of the beholders; the craft reappeared, and then, a moment later, was half hidden again in the smother. It could be seen that she was completely awash and that those galloping white-maned horses were charging over her. She was buffeted about as by battering-rams; the remainder of her cargo was being rapidly torn from her deck. Soon another shout arose, for human figures could be seen still clinging to her.

Onward the scow went, until once again she fetched up on a reef or a rock which the low stage of the river had brought close to the surface; there she hung.

"Poleon Doret had gone into action ere this. Having satisfied himself that some of the Rouletta's crew remained alive, he cast loose the painter of the nearest skiff and called to Phillips, who was standing close by:

"Come on! We goin' get dose people!"

Now Pierce had had enough rough water for one day; it seemed to him that there must be other men in this crowd better qualified by training than he to undertake this rescue. But no one stepped forward and so he obeyed Doret's order. As he slipped out of his coat and kicked off his boots, he reflected, with a sinking feeling of disappointment, that his emotions were not by any means such as a really courageous man would experience. He was completely lacking in enthusiasm for this enterprise, for it struck him as risky, nay, foolhardy, insane, to take a boat over that cataract in an attempt to snatch human beings out from the very midst of those threshing breakers. It seemed more than likely that all hands would be drowned in the undertaking, and he could not summon the reckless abandon necessary to face that likelihood with anything except the frankest apprehension. He was surprised at himself, for he had imagined that when his moment came, if ever it did, that he, Phillips, would prove to be a rather exceptional person; instead he discovered that he was something of a coward. The unexpectedness of this discovery astonished the young man. Being deeply and thoroughly frightened, it was nothing less than the abhorrence at allowing that fright to become known which stiffened his determination. In his own sight he dwindled to very small proportions; then came the realization that Doret was having difficulty in securing volunteers to go with them, and he was considerably heartened at finding he was not greatly different from the rest of these people.

"Who's goin' he's us?" the Frenchman was shouting. "Come now, you stout fellers. Dere's lady on dat scow. 'Ain't nobody goin' nerve?"

It was a tribute to the manhood of the North that after a brief hesitation several men offered themselves. At the last moment, however, Broad and Bridges elbowed the others aside, saying: "Here, you! That's our boat and we know how she handles."

Into the skiff they piled and hurriedly stripped down; then, in obedience to Doret's command, they settled themselves at the forward oars, leaving Pierce to set the stroke.

"Poleon stood braced in the stern, like a gondolier, and when willing hands had shot the boat out into the current he leaned his weight upon the after oars; beneath his and Pierce's efforts the ash blades bent. Out into the hurrying flood the four men sent their craft; then, with a mighty heave, the pilot swung its bow down-stream and helped to drive it directly at the throat of the cataract.

There came a breath-taking plunge during which the rescuing skiff and its crew were hidden from the view of those on shore; out into sight they lunged again and, in a cloud of spray, went galloping through the stampeding waves. At risk of capsizing they turned around and, battling furiously against the current, were swept down, stern first, upon the stranded barge. Doret's face was turned back over his shoulder, he was measuring distance, gauging with practised eye the whims and vagaries of the tumbling torrent; when he flung himself upon the oars Pierce Phillips felt his own strength completely dwarfed by that of the big pilot. "Poleon's hands inclosed his in a viselike grasp; he wielded the sweeps as if they were reeds, and with them he wielded Phillips.

Two people only were left upon the Rouletta, that sidewise plunge having carried the crew away. Once again Sam Kirby's artificial hand had proved its usefulness, and without its aid it is doubtful if either he or his daughter could have withstood the deluge. For a second time he had sunk that sharp steel hook into the solid wood and had managed by virtue of that advantage, to save himself and his girl. Both of them were half drowned; they were well-nigh frozen, too; now, however, finding themselves in temporary security, Kirby had broached one of the few remaining cases of bottled goods. As the rowboat came close its occupants saw him press a drink upon his daughter, then gulp one himself.

It was impossible either to lay the skiff alongside the wreck with any degree of care or to hold her there; as a matter of fact, the two hulls collided with a crash. Kid Bridges' oar snapped off short and the side of the lighter boat was smashed in. Water poured over the rescuers. For an instant it seemed that they were doomed, but, clawing fiercely at whatever they could lay hands upon, they checked their progress long enough for the castaways to obey Doret's shout of command. The girl flung herself into Pierce's arms; her father followed, landing in a heap amidships. Even as they jumped the skiff was torn away and hurried onward by the flood.

Sam Kirby raised himself to his knees and turned his ashen face to Rouletta.

"Hurt you any, kid?" he inquired. The girl shook her head. She was very white, her teeth were chattering, her wet dress clung tightly to her figure.

Staring fixedly at the retreating

barge the old man cried: "All gone! All gone!" Then, bracing himself with his good hand, he brandished his steel hook at the rapids and heaped curses upon them.

A half-mile below the wreck "Poleon Doret brought his crippled skiff into an eddy, and there the crowd, which had kept pace with it down the river-bank, lent willing assistance in effecting a landing. As Kirby stepped ashore he shook hands with the men who had jeopardized their lives for him and his daughter; in a cheerless, colorless voice he said, "It looks to me like you boys had a drink coming." From his coat pocket he drew a bottle of whisky; with a blow of that artificial hand he struck off its neck and then proffered it to Doret. "Drink hearty!" said he. "It's all that's left of a good outfit!"

3 BIG GAMES IN THE MIDWEST TOMORROW

MICHIGAN-ILLINI, IOWA AND OHIO, CHICAGO-PENN

NOTRE DAME HAS AN ENGAGE- MENT WITH MINNE- SOTA U.

IRSH, ALTHOUGH HUMBLLED BY ARMY, EXPECTED TO PLAY GOOD GAME

By EDWARD C. DERR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Oct. 23.—Middle western football interest tomorrow will be centered in three games, the Michigan-Illinois combat at Urbana, the Iowa-Ohio State game at Columbus and the big intersectional game at Philadelphia, where Chicago meets Pennsylvania.

There are other games in the Big Ten conference but for one reason or other they will not attract nearly the attention of the three contests above named.

The game at Urbana will bring Red Grange into action against the team he demolished last year by sprinting to four touchdowns in the first quarter and to a fifth touchdown before the final whistle. The Wolverines this year have a superior team and Illinois is weaker, thus making a Michigan victory highly probable, but the outcome will be different if Grange can find a few holes.

Benny Friedman, star of the Wolverine backfield, will be closely watched.

At Columbus another pair of opposing stars will be brought face to face. They are Nick Kutsch, the hard hitting halfback from Iowa and Elmer Marek, a dashing athlete from Cedar Rapids, Ia., who left his home state to join the Buckeyes. Odds are about even in this game, but Ohio has a slight edge on the face of early games.

Coach Stagg's Chicago Maroons have a tough fight on their hands at Philadelphia. Pennsylvania is a 7 to 5 favorite to win and the odds are even higher among critics who saw Chicago's indifferent exhibition against Northwestern last Saturday. Certain of the wise ones, however, believe the wily Stagg has been keeping much of his strength under cover.

Next to these three games the most important battle on tomorrow's program is the Notre Dame-Minnesota engagement at Minneapolis. While the Irish were humbled by the army, they are expected to give Coach Spears' Gopher team a great game.

The Northwestern-Tulane game at Chicago brings together one of the most powerful teams that ever represented the south and a Big Ten team that is suffering the absence of its greatest star, Moon Baker. The southern should be easy winners unless the Wildcats have improved greatly since last week.

Wisconsin meets Purdue at Madison. Although this is a Big Ten championship game it lacks importance for the reason that Wisconsin is already out of the race and Purdue is not expected to get very far. The remaining Big Ten team, Indiana, takes on Miami at Bloomington.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE WITH BROKEN NECK

MESSAGES OF ENCOURAGEMENT POUR IN TO STRICKEN FOOT- BALL PLAYER

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Flowers in abundance and messages of encouragement from LaFayette, Pa.; Pennsylvania, Princeton, Holy Cross, Gettysburg, Rutgers, Harvard, Yale and numerous other big eastern universities poured into the hospital here where Charlie Prior, star back of the Lehigh eleven, is fighting for his life with a broken neck suffered in last Saturday's game.

The message from Holy Cross said that daily prayers were being offered by the student body for his recovery. LaFayette, Lehigh's ancient rival, sent a huge basket of flowers, draped with the colors of the two teams.

QUESTIONED ON DEATH OF MAIL CARRIER HALDON

Atwater, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Colin McDonald, cashier of the State bank of Annandale was questioned today by authorities in connection with the death of Jacob Haldon, 38, mail carrier.

Haldon died Tuesday. He was shot last September by McDonald during a fight with the latter's father, Will McDonald, president of the bank.

The shooting took place in the bank.

SECTIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

FOOTBALL GAMES WITH IMPORT- ANT BEARING ON SAME TO BE PLAYED

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Oct. 23.—Games with an important bearing on sectional championships will be played tomorrow.

Dartmouth, one of the most powerful teams in the east, meets Harvard in a battle that might develop into a huge surprise.

Georgia Tech and Alabama, leaders in the race for the southern championship, will provide the feature game of the south.

While there is no definite title at stake the game in Philadelphia between Pennsylvania and Chicago will be one of the most interesting games of the day. Chicago's standing in the western conference would not be affected by a defeat, but a defeat for Pennsylvania would seriously affect its claim for the eastern championship as there is no way to judge claims in the east except on games won and lost.

Against a weaker team Michigan will have a chance to revenge itself for last year's defeat by Illinois.

Dartmouth coaches and the student body have been warning the team against over confidence since Harvard was downed last Saturday by Holy Cross.

It is rather early in the season for such an important game as the Georgia Tech-Alabama contests, as the two teams really have not been tried.

NORTHWEST BRIEFS

Closed 5 Soft Drink Parlors
Minneapolis.—Judge Joseph W. Molyneux in federal court yesterday ordered five soft drink parlors closed for violating the prohibition law.

DRAG LINE IN GRAVEL PIT BRINGS DEATH TO WORKER

Owatonna, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Varl Seeler, 27, died here late yesterday of injuries resulting from an accident earlier in the day at the gravel pit where he was working.

With another laborer, Seeler was operating a loader in the pit. He was caught by the drag line and carried across the drive wheel of the gasoline engine used to haul the line.

Seeler was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull and other serious injuries. He died shortly after.

HINES RELEASED ON $10,000 BAIL

St. Paul, Oct. 23.—(UP)—William Himes, St. Paul restaurant proprietor charged with harboring a fugitive from justice, was released today on $10,000 bond.

Authorities reinvestigating the Gleeman murder case allege Himes assisted in the escape from the state of Harold Gadbois, accused of pre-jury in the first trial of the Gleemans.

Himes had been held in jail since Tuesday because of failure to settle the amount of bail.

OPPOSITE METHODS MAKE GREAT GAMES

By PAUL WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Oct. 23.—There is an axiom in the business of promoting boxing matches—"If you want a wow, put an Irishman and a Jew in a ring together."

The theory being, probably much the same as that which finds a left handed batter slugging his best against a right hand hurler and vice versa. Football, too, offers an opportunity for "opposites" to meet each other. The fastest, hardest fought games of the year are usually found when two teams employing completely different modes of attack are lined up against each other and let loose.

There are, generally speaking, two varieties of gridiron offense. One of these is fooling the enemy regarding the point of attack, drawing him out of position and then shooting the runner through the unguarded space. This is football depending upon brains and cunning.

The other is getting together as many interferences as possible and quickly rushing them to the line of scrimmage with a certain job allotted to each man. This is the method of power and brawn.

Both of these call for speed, but the first requires speed only from the man carrying the ball.

Get a pair of top-notch elevens which employ these divergent methods of attack fairly consistently and you have a battle that will thrill you for many a moon in retrospect.

"Gilt" Dobbie, the gloomy coach of the Cornell team, is a master at the deceptive method. Scarcely a season goes by in which he does not originate at least one play that will be good for 20 or 30 yards the first time it is used. Much of the sensational Eddie Kaw's success was attributed to off-tackle slants made when the opposing team was prepared for a sweeping end run.

Knute Rockne, who guides the destinies of Notre Dame football, is able to develop better interference for his backs than possibly any other coach.

And the fame of the Big Red and Notre Dame elevens illustrates that each method has its good points.

"POPE JOAN" CENTER OF MANY LEGENDS

Fantastic Tale Embellished by Chroniclers.

Of all the crabbled, querulous, ecstatic tales of the Middle Ages, none is more medieval, and none more provocative to doctors and sages, than the history of "Pope Joan," says John O'London's Weekly. About her and about her they have argued. She was a man, say some; a devil, say others; she occupied the throne of Saint Peter for any period of time from two and a half to nineteen years; she was named alternately Agnes, Gilberta, Gerberta, Margaret, Isabel, Dorothy, or Jutta; she did not exist at all. Probably not, indeed; she achieves but a small measure of verisimilitude in the hands of her chroniclers, and their differing stories do not help her. On one point only are they agreed; with one accord they wag their heads over her moral delinquency, and brand her as having, at a peculiarly inconvenient moment, given birth to a child.

It is between Leo IV, who died on July 11, 853, and Benedict, consecrated on September 29 of the same year, that legend endeavors to sandwich its woman pope. By the end of the Thirteenth century her story had won general credence. At the beginning of the Fifteenth century her supposed bust kept company in the cathedral at Siena with the busts of all authentic popes; and at the Council of Constance John Huss supported his claims by appealing to the case of "Agnes, who became Pope Joan."

The tale swells in extravagance as it grows in years. Stephen of Bourbon says simply that the woman was a clever scribe, who became notary of the Curia and rose to be cardinal and pope. A later version sends her first on a visit to Athens, where by her diligence she becomes a subtle reasoner. The fame of Rome reaches her ears; straightway she packs up her books and journeys thither, to become a professor at whose feet the greatest teachers are eager to sit. Celebrated for her mode of life no less than for her learning, she is unanimously elected pope; but alas! fine living makes her voluptuous, and yielding to temptation, she falls.

A monk of Malmesbury, writing in 1366, says that, born in Mayence, Joan was sent by her parents to receive instruction in the sciences from male teachers. On one of them she came to look with more affection than became a pupil, and when he went to Rome, she donned man's dress and went with him; and there, because she surpassed everyone in learning, she was made cardinal by Pope Leo.

As to the punishment meted out to the disciple of Satan, when the birth of a child betrayed her, the authorities differ. One of them will have her discovered before her election, tied to the feet of a horse, dragged out of the city and stoned. Another allows her a two years' triumph and a natural death. A third merely deposes her; while Boccaccio (who, the wicked fellow, rather enjoys the tale) permits her to shed a few tears and retire into private life!

Childhood

Adults, whether parents or governesses or teachers, are phenomena of nature which children unquestionably accept. Unworried by philosophies which rend the souls of adults, to them today is today and yesterday was not, and tomorrow shall not be. Living in the moment, with the moment thus becoming eternity, to them we adults are as the rocks, the trees, the sky, the sun. We are neither to be liked nor disliked, loved nor hated. We just are. Suiting Action to Word

The accused man appeared before the justice of the peace, accompanied by his attorney. After the defendant had told his story, the old justice of the peace cleared his throat, spat a stream of tobacco juice on the floor, and, looking sharply over his reading specs, said in a commanding voice:

"Young fellow you are sentenced to a year in the pen."

"But your honor," objected the defendant's young attorney, "you have no authority to sentence a man to the penitentiary."

"That was something the justice had failed to take into account. 'I know I ain't,' he replied. 'But I've already done it.'—Indianapolis News.

Horses and Lightning

Horses do not draw lightning any more than any other animals. The fact that horses are struck so frequently is probably due to these animals seeking protection from rain under trees. If they hover near fences they are also more likely to be struck.

2ND KAROLYI CASE FACES THE GOVERNMENT

SECRETARY OF STATE EXCLUDES COMMUNISTS AND ALLEGED REVOLUTIONARIES

COURSE TAKEN UNDER FIRE FROM REPUBLICAN AND SEN- ATORIAL CIRCLES

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 23.—Secretary of State Kellogg's exclusion of communists and alleged revolutionaries from the United States today was under a renewed fire from republican and senatorial circles aroused by the precipitation of a second Karolyi case.

Ralph Beaver Strassburger, influential republican politician of Norristown, Pa., has obtained from Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, a promise he will introduce and fight for a bill in congress this winter to shear the state department of its power to prevent issuance of passport visas to visitors to this country.

Under the 1921 immigration law Secretary Hughes and later Kellogg refused Count Karolyi permission to speak while visiting here last spring. A few weeks ago Kellogg refused a passport visa to Shapurji Saklatvala, communist member of the British parliament and now Kellogg has refused a visa to Count Karolyi's wife, countess Catherine Karolyi, who wanted to visit the Strassburger family.

"Kellogg sees communists behind every chair," said Strassburger. He carried his protest against refusal to admit Countess Karolyi to President Coolidge. Kellogg and Borah as well as Mr. Coolidge is understood to have passed the buck to Kellogg and Kellogg refused to change his decision.

Paris, Oct. 23.—Countess Karolyi, barred from America by state department refusal of a visa, declared today she "was surprised at the government's course."

"Washington knows I am not a propagandist. I lectured last year on women's questions and was invited to return and repeat these lectures. Evidently there is a misunderstanding and good friends in America intend to carry the case to President Coolidge."

DRILL FOR OIL AT FOXHOME, MINN.

Foxhome, Minn., Oct. 23.—Foxhome is awaiting expectantly the outcome of an oil venture launched near here on the land of Frank L. Smith, Dwight, Ill.

A derrick is under construction and drilling is expected to start soon by the company which has leased Smith's extensive marsh land holdings.

Although the neighborhood is generally skeptical, the tower mounting higher every day, is attracting more than usual interest.

Other similar ventures in the state have failed. It is not the first attempt to tap a golden flow near here. This accounts for the lack of excitement.

The land over which the derrick is being constructed was formerly known as the Shaw slough. It is a large expanse of waste swamp land in section eight, town of Foxhome, just west of the Ottertail county line.

3 BIG GAMES IN THE MIDWEST TOMORROW

MICHIGAN-ILLINI, IOWA AND OHIO, CHICAGO-PENN

NOTRE DAME HAS AN ENGAGE- MENT WITH MINNE- SOTA U.

IRSH, ALTHOUGH HUMBLIED BY ARMY, EXPECTED TO PLAY GOOD GAME

By EDWARD C. DERR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Oct. 23.—Middle western football interest tomorrow will be centered in three games, the Michigan-Illinois combat at Urbana, the Iowa-Ohio State game at Columbus and the big intersectional game at Philadelphia, where Chicago meets Pennsylvania.

There are other games in the Big Ten conference but for one reason or other they will not attract nearly the attention of the three contests above named.

The game at Urbana will bring Red Grange into action against the team he demolished last year by sprinting to four touchdowns in the first quarter and to a fifth touchdown before the final whistle. The Wolverines this year have a superior team and Illinois is weaker, thus making a Michigan victory highly probable, but the outcome will be different if Grange can find a few holes.

Benny Friedman, star of the Wolverine backfield, will be closely watched.

At Columbus another pair of opposing stars will be brought face to face. They are Nick Kutsch, the hard hitting halfback from Iowa and Elmer Marek, a dashing athlete from Cedar Rapids, Ia., who left his home state to join the Buckeyes. Odds are about even in this game, but Ohio has a slight edge on the face of early games.

Coach Stagg's Chicago Maroons have a tough fight on their hands at Philadelphia. Pennsylvania is a 7 to 5 favorite to win and the odds are even higher among critics who saw Chicago's indifferent exhibition against Northwestern last Saturday. Certain of the wise ones, however, believe the wily Stagg has been keeping much of his strength under cover.

Next to these three games the most important battle on tomorrow's program is the Notre Dame-Minnesota engagement at Minneapolis. While the Irish were humbled by the army, they are expected to give Coach Spears' Gopher team a great game.

The Northwestern-Tulane game at Chicago brings together one of the most powerful teams that ever represented the south and a Big Ten team that is suffering the absence of its greatest star, Moon Baker. The southerners should be easy winners unless the Wildcats have improved greatly since last week.

Wisconsin meets Purdue at Madison. Although this is a Big Ten championship game it lacks importance for the reason that Wisconsin is already out of the race and Purdue is not expected to get very far.

The remaining Big Ten team, Indiana, takes on Miami at Bloomington.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE WITH BROKEN NECK

MESSAGES OF ENCOURAGEMENT POUR IN TO STRICKEN FOOT- BALL PLAYER

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Flowers in abundance and messages of encouragement from LaFayette, Pa.; Pennsylvania, Princeton, Holy Cross, Gettysburg, Rutgers, Harvard, Yale and numerous other big eastern universities poured into the hospital here where Charlie Prior, star back of the Lehigh eleven, is fighting for his life with a broken neck suffered in last Saturday's game.

The message from Holy Cross said that daily prayers were being offered by the student body for his recovery. LaFayette, Lehigh's ancient rival, sent a huge basket of flowers, draped with the colors of the two teams.

Prior is paralyzed from the neck down, but the doctors have hope that he may recover if he kept up his courage.

QUESTIONED ON DEATH OF MAIL CARRIER HALDON

Atwater, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Colin McDonald, cashier of the State bank of Annandale was questioned today by authorities in connection with the death of Jacob Haldon, 38, mail carrier.

Haldon died Tuesday. He was shot last September by McDonald during a fight with the latter's father, Will McDonald, president of the bank.

The shooting took place in the bank.

SECTIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

FOOTBALL GAMES WITH IMPORT- ANT BEARING ON SAME TO BE PLAYED

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Oct. 23.—Games with an important bearing on sectional championships will be played tomorrow.

Dartmouth, one of the most powerful teams in the east, meets Harvard in a battle that might develop into a huge surprise.

Georgia Tech and Alabama, leaders in the race for the southern championship, will provide the feature game of the south.

While there is no definite title at stake the game in Philadelphia between Pennsylvania and Chicago will be one of the most interesting games of the day. Chicago's standing in the western conference would not be affected by a defeat, but a defeat for Pennsylvania would seriously affect its claim for the eastern championship as there is no way to judge claims in the east except on games won and lost.

Against a weaker team Michigan will have a chance to revenge itself for last year's defeat by Illinois.

Dartmouth coaches and the student body have been warning the team against over confidence since Harvard was downed last Saturday by Holy Cross.

It is rather early in the season for such an important game as the Georgia Tech-Alabama contests, as the two teams really have not been tried.

DRAG LINE IN GRAVEL PIT BRINGS DEATH TO WORKER

Owatonna, Minn., Oct. 23.—(UP)—Varl Seeler, 27, died here late yesterday of injuries resulting from an accident earlier in the day at the gravel pit where he was working.

With another laborer, Seeler was operating a loader in the pit. He was caught by the drag line and carried across the drive wheel of the gasoline engine used to haul the line.

Seeler was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull and other serious injuries. He died shortly after.

HINES RELEASED ON $10,000 BAIL

St. Paul, Oct. 23.—(UP)—William Himes, St. Paul restaurant proprietor charged with harboring a fugitive from justice, was released today on $10,000 bond.

Authorities reinvestigating the Gleeman murder case allege Himes assisted in the escape from the state of Harold Gadbois, accused of pre-jury in the first trial of the Gleemans.

Himes had been held in jail since Tuesday because of failure to settle the amount of bail.

OPPOSITE METHODS MAKE GREAT GAMES

By PAUL WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Oct. 23.—There is an axiom in the business of promoting boxing matches—"If you want a wow, put an Irishman and a Jew in a ring together."

The theory being, probably much the same as that which finds a left handed batter slugging his best against a right hand hurler and vice versa. Football, too, offers an opportunity for "opposites" to meet each other. The fastest, hardest fought games of the year are usually found when two teams employing completely different modes of attack are lined up against each other and let loose.

There are, generally speaking, two varieties of gridiron offensive. One of these is fooling the enemy regarding the point of attack, drawing him out of position and then shooting the runner through the unguarded space. This is football depending upon brains and cunning.

The other is getting together as many interferences as possible and quickly rushing them to the line of scrimmage with a certain job allotted to each man. This is the method of power and brawn.

Both of these call for speed, but the first requires speed only from the man carrying the ball.

Get a pair of top-notch elevens which employ these divergent methods of attack fairly consistently and you have a battle that will thrill you for many a moon in retrospect.

"GI" Dobbie, the gloomy coach of the Cornell team, is a master at the deceptive method. Scarcely a season goes by in which he does not originate at least one play that will be good for 20 or 30 yards the first time it is used. Much of the sensational Eddie Kaw's success was attributed to off-tackle slants made when the opposing team was prepared for a sweeping end run. Knute Rockne, who guides the destinies of Notre Dame football, is able to develop better interference for his backs than possibly any other coach. And the fame of the Big Red and Notre Dame elevens illustrates that each method has its good points.

"POPE JOAN" CENTER OF MANY LEGENDS

Fantastic Tale Embellished by Chroniclers.

Of all the crabbed, querulous, ecstatic tales of the Middle Ages, none is more medieval, and none more provocative to doctors and sages, than the history of "Pope Joan," says John O'London's Weekly. About her and about her they have argued. She was a man, say some; a devil, say others; she occupied the throne of Saint Peter for any period of time from two and a half to nineteen years; she was named alternately Agnes, Gilberta, Gerberta, Margaret, Isabel, Dorothy, or Jutta; she did not exist at all. Probably not, indeed; she achieves but a small measure of verisimilitude in the hands of her chroniclers, and their differing stories do not help her. On one point only are they agreed; with one accord they wag their heads over her moral delinquency, and brand her as having, at a peculiarly inconvenient moment, given birth to a child.

It is between Leo IV, who died on July 11, 853, and Benedict, consecrated on September 29 of the same year, that legend endeavors to sandwich its woman pope. By the end of the Thirteenth century her story had won general credence. At the beginning of the Fifteenth century her supposed bust kept company in the cathedral at Siena with the busts of all authentic popes; and at the Council of Constance John Huss supported his claims by appealing to the case of "Agnes, who became Pope Joan."

The tale swells in extravagance as it grows in years. Stephen of Bourbon says simply that the woman was a clever scribe, who became notary of the Curia and rose to be cardinal and pope. A later version sends her first on a visit to Athens, where by her diligence she becomes a subtle reasoner. The fame of Rome reaches her ears; straightaway she packs up her books and journeys thither, to become a professor at whose feet the greatest teachers are eager to sit. Celebrated for her mode of life no less than for her learning, she is unanimously elected pope; but alas! fine living makes her voluptuous, and, yielding to temptation, she falls.

A monk of Malmesbury, writing in 1366, says that, born in Mayence, Joan was sent by her parents to receive instruction in the sciences from male teachers. On one of them she came to look with more affection than became a pupil, and when he went to Rome, she donned man's dress and went with him; and there, because she surpassed everyone in learning, she was made cardinal by Pope Leo.

As to the punishment meted out to the disciple of Satan, when the birth of a child betrayed her, the authorities differ. One of them will have her discovered before her election, tied to the feet of a horse, dragged out of the city and stoned. Another allows her a two years' triumph and a natural death. A third merely deposes her; while Boccaccio (who, the wicked fellow, rather enjoys the tale) permits her to shed a few tears and retire into private life!

FREIGHT RATES AFFECT BRAINERD

Increase Asked by Fargo Has Effect on Third of Minnesota

OBJECTIONS ARE RAISED

Meeting Held at Little Falls to Prepare and Distribute Questionnaire

Congressman Harold Knutson met on Wednesday afternoon with the traffic and mercantile bureaus of the Little Falls Board of Commerce relative to the increased freight rates that went into effect last month. These rates were increased about 50 per cent and were brought about, it is claimed through the efforts of the Fargo Chamber of Commerce that its wholesale houses might be placed on a better competitive basis with twin city distributors.

The increase affects practically a third of Minnesota, including Brainerd, Little Falls, points north and west, covering territory that has in the past chosen to patronize twin city wholesalers.

The meeting at Little Falls decided to prepare and distribute questionnaires to be sent to the towns in this territory, west to Morris, northwest to Fergus Falls, and north to Walker.

When these questionnaires have been returned, it is planned to call a meeting of all towns and cities represented and affected in this territory, and place before such a meeting the data compiled from the questionnaire. It is believed that the results will prove that this territory has no commercial relations whatever with Fargo, and that the rates as they have been increased are discriminating.

Congressman Knutson will go before the Interstate Commerce Commission with the facts and figures when he returns to Washington about November 1st, and hopes to have the freight rates lowered.

Beyond Pardon When He Laid Failure to Wife

Once upon a time there was a man who didn't amount to anything and he was arrested for encumbering the earth and taken before the judge.

"My son," said the judge in his kind way, "you're not worth a darn. Not even half a darn. But I'm going to give you another chance. I'm going to set you up in business and see what happens. If you succeed even in a small way within a year, I'll spare you."

Well, the judge kept his word and the man began to conduct a business. At the end of a year he was broke, and again he was taken before the judge.

"You see," said the man. "I trusted people and they didn't pay me. It wasn't my fault."

"Your judgment is rotten," said the judge; "but you seem to have a good heart. I'll try you again."

At the end of the second year the man was broke again and again he faced the judge.

"I just had hard luck," he explained. "I bought my goods when prices were high and then hard times came along and prices dropped and I couldn't make a profit. Expenses ate me up."

"Well, well," said the judge; "luck has much to do with it, and it's no disgrace to have misfortune. Many men are knocked out by circumstances and yet contrive to win in the end because they have the right stuff in them. You get one more chance."

The one chance wasn't enough. The man hadn't a cent at the end of the year.

"What now?" asked the judge, and his voice was hard. "Did you trust too many people this time, or was luck against you?"

"It was my wife's fault," said the man. "You see, she—"

"That's enough," said the judge. He turned to the head knocker who stood near and said: "Just take him out and knock him in the head. When a man begins to blame his wife for his failures he's through."—Baltimore Sun.

Bully Got a Lesson

As a train neared Cleveland, a tall man was aggressively bully-ragging the porter because he had been unable to pick out the passenger's traveling bag by his description of it. Billy Evans, baseball umpire and sports writer, was present and finally expressed a desire that the browbeating cease. But the tall man only talked louder. Evans got up and walked back to be faced aggressively by the talker. "So you've come back to settle this, have you?" he blared at Evans. "Well, now you're here, what are you going to do about it? What are you going to do, eh?" Evans' answer was an instantaneous short-armed cuff with the open hand which jarred the talker's head about three feet. But it settled the argument. Sometimes a fist can settle things more effectively and efficiently than yards of conversation. —Capper's Weekly.

Two men, said to be from Minneapolis, whose names could not be learned, had a narrow escape from drowning on Thursday afternoon while hunting on North Round lake. The men had set out their decoys at the west end of the lake, where Trunk Highway No. 19 skirts the bank, and were out in a duck boat awaiting a flight to pass over.

How the accident occurred is not known, but the boat was capsized, going to the bottom nose first. The men were in the water some little time before their cries for help were heard by passersby on the highway. It is reported that both suffered from their long exposure in the icy water, but were sufficiently recovered to return to Minneapolis today.

Reading—Agnes Wold.

At the close of the program refreshments will be served by Mrs. Edgar Olson.

Bake Sale

The ladies aid of the Peoples Congregational church will hold a bake sale in the Cooperative store on Saturday, October 24, from 1 to 8 o'clock. Home made buns, bread, cakes, cookies, pies and baked beans will be sold.

PRETTY STORE WINDOWS

Particularly Attractive One of Michael Store Features

Handkerchiefs

From time to time the Dispatch has called the attention of its readers to pretty store windows. The work of trimming a window is an art and requires much thought to properly present merchandise as to command attention and at the same time to create a desire for possession, which is the aim of window decorating.

There is a particularly attractive window at the H. F. Michael Co. store this week which is commanding the attention of passers by. It is a display of fine handkerchiefs arranged most beautifully.

The work of arranging the window was done by Mrs. J. E. Michael whose window trimming has created most favorable remarks.

NEW INVENTION SAVES MILLIONS

A Lamp that Burns 94% Air.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% per cent air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor J. E. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

FREIGHT RATES AFFECT BRAINERD

Increase Asked by Fargo Has Effect on Third of Minnesota

OBJECTIONS ARE RAISED

Meeting Held at Little Falls to Prepare and Distribute Questionnaire

Congressman Harold Knutson met on Wednesday afternoon with the traffic and mercantile bureaus of the Little Falls Board of Commerce relative to the increased freight rates that went into effect last month. These rates were increased about 50 per cent and were brought about, it is claimed through the efforts of the Fargo Chamber of Commerce that its wholesale houses might be placed on a better competitive basis with twin city distributors.

The increase affects practically a third of Minnesota, including Brainerd, Little Falls, points north and west, covering territory that has in the past chosen to patronize twin city wholesalers.

The meeting at Little Falls decided to prepare and distribute questionnaires to be sent to the towns in this territory, west to Morris, northwest to Fergus Falls, and north to Walker.

When these questionnaires have been returned, it is planned to call a meeting of all towns and cities represented and affected in this territory, and place before such a meeting the data compiled from the questionnaire. It is believed that the results will prove that this territory has no commercial relations whatever with Fargo, and that the rates as they have been increased are discriminating.

Congressman Knutson will go before the Interstate Commerce Commission with the facts and figures when he returns to Washington about November 1st, and hopes to have the freight rates lowered.

Beyond Pardon When He Laid Failure to Wife

Once upon a time there was a man who didn't amount to anything and he was arrested for encumbering the earth and taken before the judge.

"My son," said the judge in his kind way, "you're not worth a darn. Not even half a darn. But I'm going to give you another chance. I'm going to set you up in business and see what happens. If you succeed even in a small way within a year, I'll spare you."

Well, the judge kept his word and the man began to conduct a business. At the end of a year he was broke, and again he was taken before the judge.

"You see," said the man, "I trusted people and they didn't pay me. It wasn't my fault."

"Your judgment is rotten," said the judge; "but you seem to have a good heart. I'll try you again."

At the end of the second year the man was broke again and again he faced the judge.

"I just had hard luck," he explained. "I bought my goods when prices were high and then hard times came along and prices dropped and I couldn't make a profit. Expenses ate me up."

"Well, well," said the judge; "luck has much to do with it, and it's no disgrace to have misfortune. Many men are knocked out by circumstances and yet contrive to win in the end because they have the right stuff in them. You get one more chance."

The one chance wasn't enough. The man hadn't a cent at the end of the year.

"What now?" asked the judge, and his voice was hard. "Did you trust too many people this time, or was luck against you?"

"It was my wife's fault," said the man. "You see, she—"

"That's enough," said the judge. He turned to the head knocker who stood near and said: "Just take him out and knock him in the head. When a man begins to blame his wife for his failures he's through."—Baltimore Sun.

Bully Got a Lesson

As a train neared Cleveland, a tall man was aggressively bully-ragging the porter because he had been unable to pick out the passenger's traveling bag by his description of it. Billy Evans, baseball umpire and sports writer, was present and finally expressed a desire that the browbeating cease. But the tall man only talked louder. Evans got up and walked back to be faced aggressively by the talker. "So you've come back to settle this, have you?" he blared at Evans. "Well, now you're here, what are you going to do about it? What are you going to do, eh?" Evans' answer was an instantaneous short-armed cuff with the open hand which jarred the talker's head about three feet. But it settled the argument. Sometimes a fist can settle things more effectively and efficiently than yards of conversation. —Capper's Weekly.

2 MEN NARROWLY ESCAPE DROWNING

Were Hunting in North Round Lake, Boat Capsized, Going to the Bottom

CRIES FOR HELP HEARD

Hunters, Who Were From Minneapolis, Suffered Intensely From Exposure

Two men, said to be from Minneapolis, whose names could not be learned, had a narrow escape from drowning on Thursday afternoon while hunting on North Round lake.

The men had set out their decoys at the west end of the lake, where Trunk Highway No. 19 skirts the bank, and were out in a duck boat awaiting a flight to pass over.

How the accident occurred is not known, but the boat was capsized, going to the bottom nose first. The men were in the water some little time before their cries for help were heard by passersby on the highway. It is reported that both suffered from their long exposure in the icy water, but were sufficiently recovered to return to Minneapolis today.

PRETTY STORE WINDOWS

Particularly Attractive One of Michael Store Features Handkerchiefs

From time to time the Dispatch has called the attention of its readers to pretty store windows. The work of trimming a window is an art and requires much thought to properly present merchandise as to command attention and at the same time to create a desire for possession which is the aim of window decorating.

There is a particularly attractive window at the H. F. Michael Co. store this week which is commanding the attention of passers by. It is a display of fine handkerchiefs arranged most beautifully.

The work of arranging the window was done by Mrs. J. E. Michael whose window trimming has created most favorable remarks.

POTATO PRICES MOUNTING

St. Paul, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Prices being paid this month to Minnesota potato growers is nearly double the amount paid them last year for their crop, according to commission houses here.

The average prices being received by farmers is $1.40 a bushel compared with 70 cents a bushel last October.

Total production for the year, however, will be 18,000,000 bushels less than last year, according to estimates of market reports.

LIVERMORE'S HUGE TURNOVER

Chicago, Oct. 23.—(UP)—La Salle street financial men today credited Jesse Livermore, New York stock and cotton plunger, with having made several millions dollars in operations on the Chicago Board of Trade, which culminated yesterday with a sharp drop in grain prices.

December wheat was off approximately seven cents at yesterday's close from the high price Wednesday. Traders claim that Livermore dumped 8,000,000 bushels of wheat on the market.

Livermore made money both ways, it is claimed. His large buying operations drove wheat up above $1.50 a bushel early in the season, according to the story Livermore took profits and the price fell to around $1.40. The same source states he took to the buying side again and drove the price to $1.47 and that he unloaded this week, shoving prices down to $1.40, the low of yesterday.

Brokers believe Livermore's huge turnover netted him several million dollars.

GRAIN MARKET RULES AMENDMENTS

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Amendments to rules governing the grain market here were under consideration today by members of the Chamber of Commerce following approval of the changes by the board of directors.

The proposed amendments are generally regarded as important to development of the local exchange as a distribution center for the northwestern grain crop. Both deal with regulation of buying and selling in futures.

One change assures eastern buyers of grain for future delivery that warehouse receipts on grain stored in Duluth may be delivered in fulfillment of futures contracts executed here.

The rule concerning freight rates requires all members in preparing to make delivery in order to allow buyers 30 days in which to take advantage of the "minimum proportional rate" between Minneapolis and Chicago. The other would make it possible to store at Duluth as well as Minneapolis grain sold on futures contracts.

Final action on the changes will be taken November 6. They are generally regarded with favor and it is considered likely they will be adopted. Dealers say they will be a decided stimulus to local trading.

8TH DAY OF FURIOUS TRADING

New York, Oct. 23.—(UP)—The phenomenal stock market boom that has made and lost millions of dollars for investors went into an unprecedented eighth day of furious bidding, swept onward by Judge Elbert H. Gary's speech before the American Iron & Steel institute, in which he declared the nation to be on the eve of great prosperity.

Millions changed hands as stocks were traded in recklessly in a great new upward movement.

The underlying reasons for the great boom still remain a mystery. The titanic forces grappling behind the scenes for financial supremacy have not been revealed.

ON EVE OF GREAT PROSPERITY

New York, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Judge Gary gave emphasis to the forward movement in the stock exchange today by declaring before the American Iron & Steel institute that the nation was on the threshold of great prosperity. This authoritative prediction regarding the outlook of the country's future added fuel to the speculative interest and the buying power displayed in today's session was fully equal to anything Wall street has ever seen.

Naturally the strength displayed by United States Steel found its most forcible reflection in the corporation's common stock which forged ahead into new high ground on the current advance at 128½ where it was within 14 points of last winter's upward mark.

Remarkable demonstrations of strength also took place in American Can, Cast Iron Pipe, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward and various other representative issues and the whole industrial list pushed ahead without hesitation throughout the day. The market closed higher.

HECTIC DAY ON WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 23.—Wall street went through another hectic day today with prices climbing and sales mounting into millions of dollars.

For the eighth successive day prices passed the 2,000,000 share mark, totaling 2,522,900 today.

The boom, which started with motor trucks spread to mercantile and almost the entire list seemed active at times.

A personal message to YOU

Every advertisement in this paper is written to you—to help you choose worthy products—to save you money—to give you some worth-while item of business news.

Read the advertisements. Convenient, courteous information is yours at a minute's glance. Style, variety, price, where obtained. That minute's glance may mean the difference between buying unworthy wares—and the best—the difference between getting the new--and the old; between the improved and the ordinary.
